

Doings of Week in Society of Arizona's Capital

Society

Extending several weeks beyond the time which generally marks the close of the social season, society this year will enjoy a round of delightful affairs during the month of May. Not even during the holidays were there the number of events that are on the calendar for the coming week and those immediately following the next seven days. Informality has invariably characterized the late spring events and this season will note several smart functions. The fact that the annual charity ball was not given until Easter week had the effect of continuing many other affairs until after Lent that were scheduled for a bit earlier in the spring. It is understood that the Country club is planning a somewhat elaborate affair for May, the exact nature of which has not yet been determined by the entertainment committee. There are some half dozen or more bridge-luncheons and an equal number of dinners announced for this week while the junior set, too, is giving a series of events more or less notable.

Making her husband's birthday the incentive for an affair, Mrs. Arthur Gibbons Hulet gave a clever bridge-dinner Wednesday evening at her Roosevelt street home. Miss Roberta Fletcher Married to Officer in France

Announcement of a wedding in Paris recently will be of interest to Phoenixians who will recall the bride when she passed her school days in Phoenix. The news of the marriage also revealed the fact that the former Phoenixian, Miss Roberta Fletcher, had been overseas for some time with the American Red Cross. The romance of Miss Fletcher and Captain Robert S. Williams of St. Louis began on the other side, where both were in Red Cross work. Before receiving orders to sail the bride nursed the soldiers at Jefferson barracks during the influenza epidemic having completed a course in nursing at St. Louis hospital during the summer. She was assigned to a Red Cross hospital at Haverly last October, and organized the Research Bureau of the hospital and was put in charge of tracing the missing men.

The rural organization has just completed its Red Cross work, its activities in that line having been most extensive.

The attitude of the General Federation Magazine of the League of Nations is expressed in the following article clipped from the club organ: "We have been asked where we stand on the League of Nations and our reply is given below, in a message from Mrs. Cope."
March 1, the following night letter was sent to President Wilson: "A just and lasting peace to a League of Nations to guarantee it, is the great desire of American womanhood. Assuring you of our support and co-operation."

Mrs. Josiah Evans Cowles, President, General Federation of Women's Clubs.
In response to a telegram sent Mr. Tait during the Pacific coast congress at San Francisco, Mrs. Cowles received the following letter:
Salt Lake City, Utah, February 22, 1919.

My dear Madam:
I was very much gratified to receive your telegram in which you say: "A just and lasting peace with a League of Nations to guarantee its perpetuity is the great desire of American womanhood. Assure you of our support and co-operation in the war to end war." We need your help and hope that you can use all the influence possible upon the senators from your state and other states to vote for the grand covenant of Paris, which, if taken, will be the greatest step forward in recorded history to maintain peace and justice. We are glad to have our opinion confirmed by you that the women of this country are willing to have the nation assume some, though comparatively light, task and burden as its share among the nations in avoiding the enormous suffering, loss, and injustice of future wars which are bound to come in the rearrangement of the map of Europe, unless we have the standing hand, protecting influence and penalizing power of a union of the nations. Of all the factors in public opinion, the women are

Members have been asked to bring to the meeting any books on the dramas belonging to the club which they may have in their possession.

Annual election of officers will be held at a business meeting of the Harmony club on May 7. It is anticipated that Mrs. J. F. Goddard the present chairman has declined re-election because of her varied interests that will not permit her giving the necessary time to the club of an executive. Under her leadership the club has known remarkable growth and development. A social session of the organization will be held this Wednesday at the Woman's club.
